About our Scholarships

The Friends Association of the Drottningholm Theatre annually announce scholarships for education and development. All singers, dancers, and musicians who have participated at the Drottningholm Palace Theatre are eligible to apply. The funds distributed come from the foundations and funds managed by the Friends Association.

Some funds provide grants to other categories of artists as well as to technical staff who have participated in productions at the Drottningholm Court Theatre, as well as to research in theatre studies and performing arts relevant to the theatre's activities. It is important for applicants to know that these funds do not generate returns every year.

In 2017, the Friends Association of the Drottningholm Theatre established a new scholarship, the Friends' Opera Scholarship, a scholarship for development aimed at young singers who have just completed an opera school education or equivalent and have a particular interest in the Drottningholm Theatre's 17th- and 18th-century repertoire.

In November each year the application form for our scholarships will be open. Last date for applying is by the end of January and the applicants will receive their answer from the committee in March.

Their Majesties, the Swedish King and Queen, who serve as the patrons of the Friends Association, graciously present the scholarships in a formal ceremony held in June.
